CASLAR-6 国际研讨会: Attendee Guide 参会指南

Introduction to Sched

The CASLAR-6 conference program and links to all events, materials, and more will be posted to Sched, a conference scheduling platform. You MUST use Sched to attend the CASLAR-6 conference. Click here to view a video overview (in English) of Sched.

Once you are logged into Sched (see details about logging in below), you will be able to access all conference sessions, workshops, activities, and materials. While we encourage you to update your profile information on Sched so that other attendees can find you and learn more about you and your work, this is not strictly necessary to fully participate in the conference. As long as you are logged into Sched, you can find and attend sessions whether you follow the suggested optional steps later in this guide or not.

Creating Your Own Conference Schedule

Sched allows you to create your own conference schedule by simply clicking in the white circle next to the title of each session you wish to attend. You will also receive an automated email from Sched displaying your self-selected schedule each day, for ease of reference. While selecting your sessions this way is not mandatory, it is helpful both for you (since you will get an overview email each day) and for presenters (to see who plans to attend their session).

evidence in support of systematic incorporation of extensive reading at all levels of CFL/CSL instruction. This workshop will also present practical strategies for implementation as well as mixed-methods pilot research data on a multi-year trial implementation at the postsecondary level to empower participants to independently implement ER in their own instructional contexts.

Extensive Reading (常译为泛读, 以下简称ER)是一种具有扎实的二语习得及二语阅读理论和实证研究基础的教学手段。然而, 无论是在汉语作为第二语言的理论还是教学实践文献中, 对ER的关注却少之又少。本研习班将概述ER及其理论基础, 并提出二语习得理论及实践依据以支持ER应被系统性地融入CFL/CSL教学的各级课程这一论点。与此同时, 本研习班也会介绍实施ER的实际课堂战略, 并且举出大学汉语课堂中多年试行的ER混合方法试点研究数据, 从而协助参与者日后独立实施系统的ER教学活动和研究。

Interacting with Presenters & Attendee Zoom Etiquette

As an attendee in a presentation, please be respectful of both the presenters and your fellow attendees by doing the following:

1. Keep your microphone muted at all times, unless you are given the floor by the moderator to ask a question aloud.
2. If you are given the floor to speak, be respectful of everyone's time by
  - a. Limiting yourself to one or two questions at a time, and be as succinct as possible
  - b. Directly asking your question or sharing your comment--do not tell long stories or provide long explanations. Time is too limited for this.
3. Use the Zoom Chat to make comments, ask questions, and interact with presenters and attendees.
4. (optional) Keep your webcam on so that participants can see your smiling face--it is much more exciting to present to a Zoom room of people than it is to a wall of gray boxes!
5. After attending a session, you can provide feedback for presenters by (a) choosing a reaction icon and (b) leaving comments, both pictured below

Please share your feedback.

We'd love if you would elaborate

Interacting with Other Attendees

There are many different opportunities to connect with other conference attendees throughout the CASLAR-6 Conference. Connect with friends both new and old in any of the following ways:

- By using the Zoom chat to ask questions, share ideas, or make comments during session presentations
- If given the opportunity (depending on available time), by asking a question aloud during post-presentation Q&A
- By finding friends and colleagues to interact with during scheduled social times (see below for more information)
- By finding other attendees/presenters' contact information and getting in touch directly

Note: Be sure to update your picture, biography, and contact information so that other attendees can connect with you during and after the conference! To edit your profile, including your picture, bio, and contact information, hover your mouse over the circular icon at the top left of your Sched home screen and then click 'Settings'.

You will also need to make yourself visible to other attendees by clicking on the button pictured below, located at the top of the edit profile screen. Making your profile visible to others will allow them to learn more about you and your research, and provide opportunities for post-event communication and collaboration. The Organizing Committee strongly recommends making your profile and schedule public to connect with our global group of conference attendees for all kinds of future collaboration opportunities!

[\[Return to Quick Navigation\]](#)

Social Time

In order to give attendees opportunities to interact with old and new friends and colleagues as well as to explore opportunities for collaboration, the conference program includes two social networking times, on Day 2 (12:45-1:30 PM) and Day 3 (12:30-1:30 PM). Attendees are encouraged to participate in social networking time as much as possible during the conference!

To give social networking time a more in-person-like feel, we will be using the online tool GatherTown. GatherTown allows users to walk around in a virtual space to look for colleagues and to have video-chat conversations with colleagues.

Click HERE for a video introduction to GatherTown (in English).

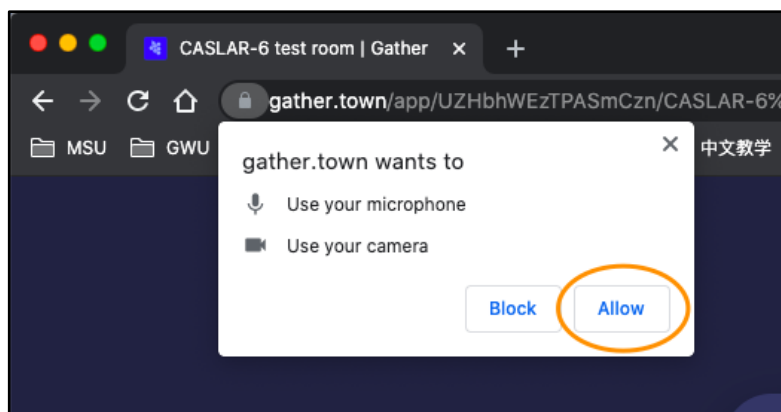

To join Social Time on GatherTown, click the Social Time link on the Sched homepage (the conference program), pictured below.

After you click the link, before you can enter the virtual social space, you will need to complete the following steps:

1. (IMPORTANT!) Allow Gather.Town to use your microphone and camera (see below).

2. Enter your name (#1 below), select your avatar--the virtual person that represents you in the virtual space--by clicking the arrows to change the person and their clothing (#2 below), then click 'Next' (#3 below).

In addition to video chats, you can also use text chat to interact. Click the chat icon (pictured to the right).

You can chat with individual people (by clicking on their name, like 'Matt Coss 高正远' below), with Everyone (so all people in the space will see your message), or with people who are close to you by clicking Nearby.

Sending messages via Chat is a good way to tell other people where you are so they can come find you, or to broadcast a message to others about who you are interested in chatting with. For example, you might say "I am interested in collaborating with other scholars on a tone acquisition project. Come find me in the green room at the top of the virtual map if you are interested!"

You can mute yourself or turn off your camera at any time during the virtual social hour, as necessary. Simply find your video screen (in the bottom right corner, pictured below), and click the microphone icon or the video camera icon to turn each one on or off.
